~~(SELF-)CENSORSHIP, SOCIAL ACTIVISM, AND CHINESE FEMINIST SCHOLARSHIP~~

Webinar 网络研讨会

Chinese feminism faces increasing (self-) censorship pressure on both domestic and international levels, on issues of social activism, politics of identity, and politics of representation. We aim to explore how to deal with the impact of ideological conflicts between China and the West, and to develop strategies to deal with local/international (self-)censorship on Chinese feminism. Meanwhile, we expect to update our understandings of “what is the Chinese feminism” in conceptual, historical, organizational, and activist perspectives.
